Lucas

MAY THE FA FA FA
BE WITH YOU!

Here I am writing you from the valley of the insane, but with good reason. Today, I happened to buy issue #418 and noticed this horrible horrible flaw that should be punishable by death. On your cover you have Anakin Skywalker and Obi-Wan fighting with red sabers! When in reality they have blue sabers! Wan has always had a blue saber and Ani only gets a red saber after he's burnt to a crisp. I know you are probably very sorry and because most generous am I, I have decided to forgive you.

Tazara Dorsey

Use the Dorse — You call yourself a Star Wars fan? We're surprised you didn't know that even as we write this, George "I'm going to ring every penny out of this franchise" Lucas is re-mastering Revenge of the Sith and changing the colors of all the light sabers to red. Other changes include: C-3PO now speaks with a thick Spanish accent, Emperor Palpatine has Elvis-style mutton chops and Mace Windu is now a white woman! Check back in a month for news on Lucas' special special edition that will further revise this special edition! —Ed.

FOOL BRITANNIA

After shaping my teenage years in 70s Britain, MAD mags disappeared from our magazine racks in a suspected government conspiracy. So I was surprised to find that not only is it still going but is as funny and irreverent as ever. Even more impressive was that amongst the talented new guys, my favorites from the old gang are still in residence — Sergio Aragones, Al Jaffee and most of all Mort Drucker, who launched my lifelong passion/obsession with drawing and caricature. Just signed up for a two-year subscription and starting to recoup the missing years. Glad to see MAD still rules!

Paul Adams

Up and Adams — We were touched by your letter and appreciate you saying that "MAD still rules." Too bad the same thing can't be said about Great Britain! God save the Queen! —Ed.

Make a Dumb Wish Foundation™

I don't know if this has happened before, but what the heck! I would like to make a two-part wish for the Make A Dumb Wish Foundation™. You see, I live in a loft in Brooklyn and I had a bar built. Well, my no good friends are always over and I'm always trying to come up with a new drink that might get them sick enough that they won't come back! So the first part of my wish is to have the ingredients for Monkey Juice. I figure they are idiots and the Monkey Juice would be perfect for them. The second part is for you to print a photo of you, Ed., so that we know what you look like...and just in case the Monkey Juice doesn't work, I can show them your picture!

Grant Wesley Johnson

Grant Theft Auto — You know how we love granting readers' wishes here at the Make A Dumb Wish Foundation™. However, certain MAD secrets must be kept hidden. We can't tell you the exact ingredients of Monkey Juice, but we can tell you that it involves five Rhesus Monkeys, a heating pad and a milking stool! As to your second request, we cannot show you what we look like, but we will show you what we'd look like after you drank a couple of pints of the M Juice — va-va-voom! Thanks for writing to the Make A Dumb Wish Foundation™ —Ed.

P.S. Don't be too hard on your friends. If we had to hang out with you, we'd drink, too!

Ed. after a few drinks of monkey juice

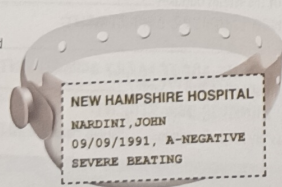

SCHOOL OF HARD KNOCK-OUTS

Next year I will be going to high school (hopefully!) Do you guys have anything that will help me survive it? Since I'm a reader of your magazine, I'm sure I will get beaten up many times, so I could use anything you guys have so that I don't die.

John Nardini

Revenge of the Nard — We're not going to lie to you. Judging from your letter, we're pretty sure you've got four years of brutal, near-fatal beat-downs heading your way. But we do have something that may help prevent your death. It is a pre-printed hospital admissions bracelet. We have taken the liberty of filling in your name and we took a guess on your blood type (hey, c'mon, blood is blood). Simply cut it out, tape it on and save valuable check-in time during your countless E.R. visits. See you in x-ray! —Ed.

ANTIQUES FREAKSHOW WITH HANS BRICKFACE

Here's something for your perusal. This is a photograph of a family heirloom that's owned by the mother-in-law of a gal I work with. Not only are they interested in finding out what it is, Guesses have been a frog sitting on the back of a colorful three-legged turtle, a toad on a possum, and my guess, a space alien on the back of a penguin on a mushroom trip.

Jim Poage

Poage's Gallery — We caught up with MAD's resident antique expert Hans Brickface as he was appraising (for insurance purposes) a shipment of counterfeit "Live Strong" bracelets. Here's his response:

A three-legged turtle? A possum? A penguin? A sure sign of good art is that it sparks discussion and it is open to varied interpretations. However, you are all wrong! This is a ceramic depiction of Sweden's most famous cartoon duo, Fatzolier, the passive-aggressive ant eater and Fotpallar the asexual pregnant toad. Unfortunately, the sculpture shows Fotpallar in his second trimester as opposed to the more valuable third trimester. Hope is not all lost, though — your set includes their arch nemesis, the extremely rare Komfortillbehör, the house plant. Together the set is worth 130 Krona, or $50 in IKEA store credit!

Hey readers! If you have an offbeat item that you want Hans to look at, send in a picture and a brief description to: Davo "The Big Appraiser" c/o MAD Magazine, PO Box 5555 St Leonards 1590 NSW.

THE FAST 5

5 THINGS TO EXPECT AT THE WEDDING OF TOM CRUISE & KATIE HOLMES

The ceremony is delayed for hours as Tom harangues the minister and tries to convert him to Scientology.

Instead of just saying "I do," Tom jumps up and down on the altar like a freakin' moron for 40 minutes.

The plastic bride and groom on top of the cake are only slightly less animated than Tom and Katie's performances in War of the Worlds and Batman Begins.

When the minister says "If anyone knows any reasons why these two should not be joined in matrimony" the place is filled with the "ouches" of 300 guests biting their tongues.

Before leaving the reception hall, Tom puts down a deposit for his next wedding.

WHAT YOUR PARENTS SAY

PARENTS SAY...
"Trust us, you're really going to love sleepaway camp!"

YOU HEAR...
"We want you out of our freakin' hair!"

PARENTS SAY...
"I don't care who's going to be there, you are not going to that party!"

YOU HEAR...
"Ever wonder I'm could sneak out and back into a black house without waking us up?"

PARENTS SAY...
"Because I said so!"

YOU HEAR...
"Actually, you're right, but I'm way too worn out to come up with a decent answer!"

PARENTS SAY...
"I am not buying you that stupid video game, and that's final!"

YOU HEAR...
"Buy a ticket to that dumb Disney movie and just sneak in!"

PARENTS SAY...
"You are not seeing that trashy R-rated movie!"

YOU HEAR...
"You know, with the right pen, an 'F' can be turned into a 'B' like that!"

PARENTS SAY...
"If you fail one more quiz, you're grounded!"

YOU HEAR...
"You know, with the right pen, an 'F' can be turned into a 'B' like that!"

NO CRUISE IS GOOD CRUISE DEPT.

Hello there, moviegoers. Recognize my voice? You should, I've done enough voiceovers in my Hollywood career to challenge James Earl Jones for top spot in the Guinness Book of World Records! From The Shawshank Redemption to Million Dollar Baby to March of the Penguins. And now this drak. Whew! Am I glad only my voice and not my face appears! The producers save money, I save my acting reputation! A win-win situation! Why am I boring you with this idle chatter? Believe me, you're gonna wish I kept talking after you sit through...

Kids, some bad news: the world is being attacked by monstrous aliens who are vaporizing us, turning us to dust and sucking our blood! Now, the good news: I wouldn't sweat your homework!

Are these illegal aliens from south of the border?
Uh. Sort of. They're coming from under the streets!

Do they have weapons of mass destruction?
They ARE weapons of mass destruction! We have to stay calm!

You stay calm, grinning idiot face! I'm going to let loose with the first of my 1,200 screams! YEEEEEEK! YAAAAAH!

I hate you! The aliens suck! I'm running away and enlisting!

Rubble has quite an emotional range. Yeah. In this film he runs the gamut from surly to bawky to sulky to moody!

What the hell is going on?
Aliens are attacking New Jersey!

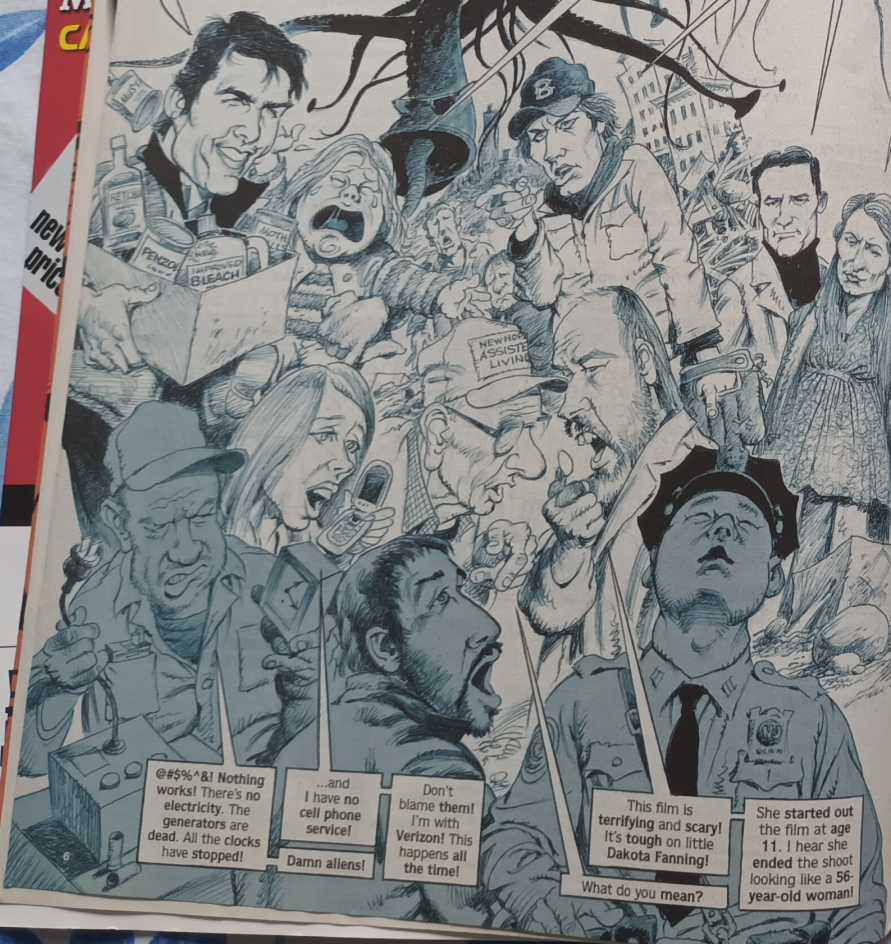

Why are they here? What do they want?

In 118 minutes of perplexing dialogue, no one ever explains that! But keep running aimlessly!

But where to?
Not sure. I think Scranton is that way!

This "attacking Tripods" scene has the look and feel of the "imperial walker" scene in Star Wars Episode V: The Empire Strikes Back!

Really? I don't think so.
Check again. I just heard Luke Skywalker call for reinforcements!

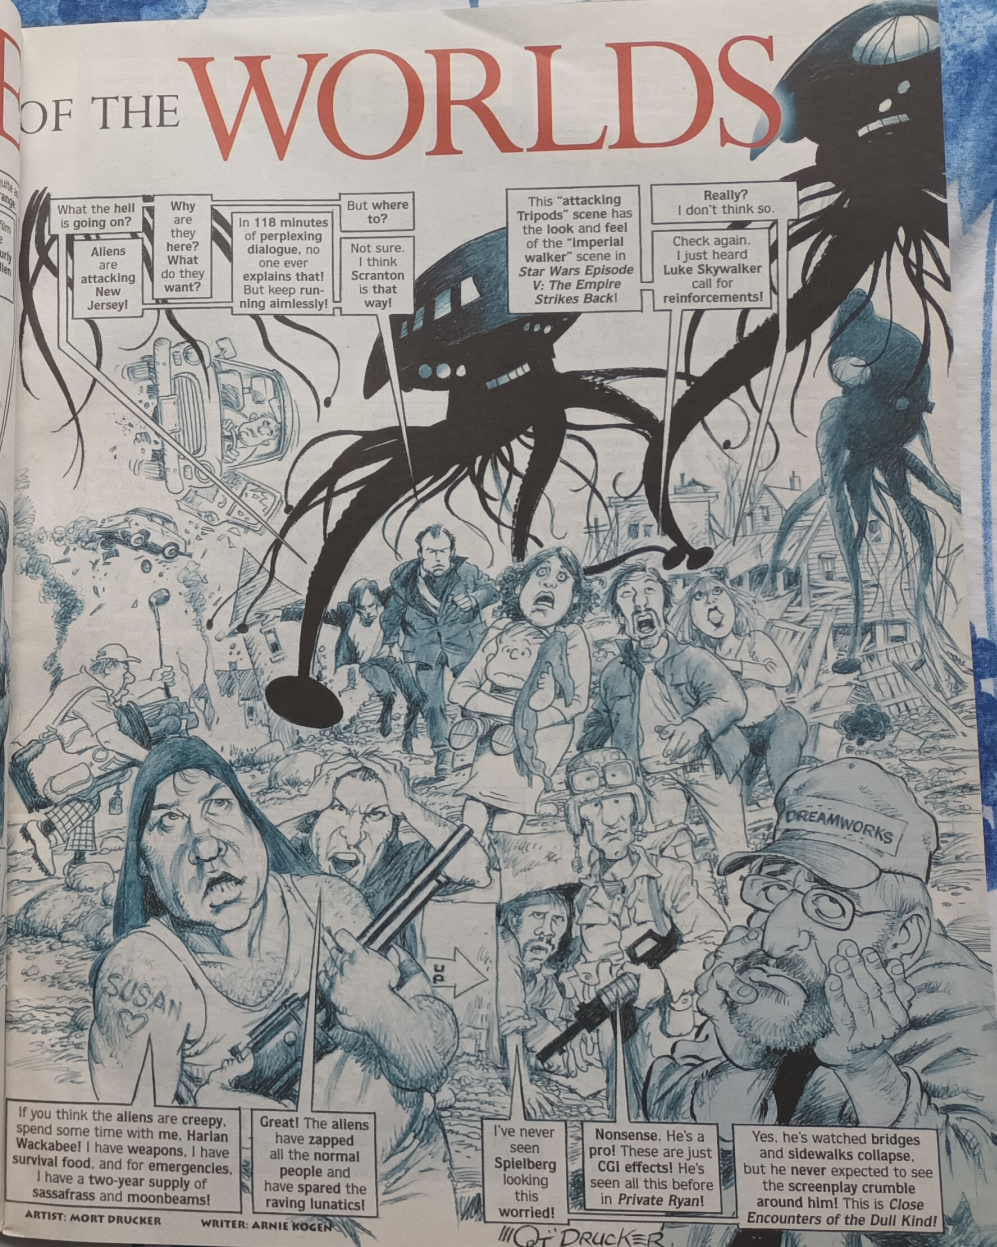

@#%&*! Nothing works! There's no electricity. The generators are dead. All the clocks have stopped!

...and I have no cell phone service!
Damn aliens!

Don't blame them! I'm with Verizon! This happens all the time!

This film is terrifying and scary! It's tough on little Dakota Fanning!
What do you mean?

She started out the film at age 11. I hear she ended the shoot looking like a 56-year-old woman!

If you think the aliens are creepy, spend some time with me. Harlan Wackabeel I have weapons. I have survival food, and for emergencies, I have a two-year supply of sassafras and moonbeams!

Great! The aliens have zapped all the normal people and have spared the raving lunatics!

I've never seen Spielberg looking this worried!

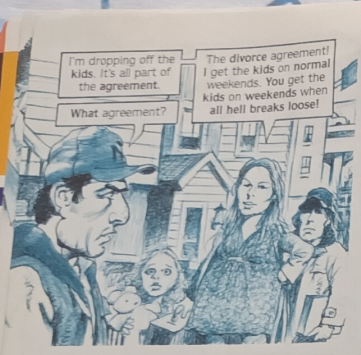

Nonsense. He's a pro! These are just CGI effects! He's seen all this before in Private Ryan!

Yes, he's watched bridges and sidewalks collapse, but he never expected to see the screenplay crumble around him! This is Close Encounters of the Dull Kind!

ARTIST: MORT DRUCKER

WRITER: ARNIE KOEN

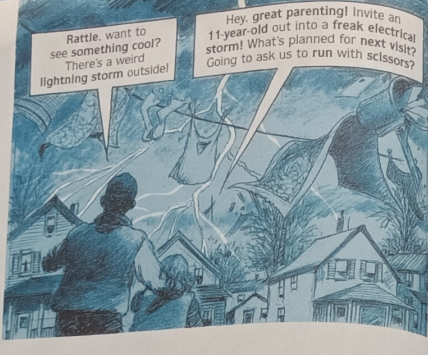

MORT DRUCKER

I'm dropping off the kids. It's all part of the agreement.

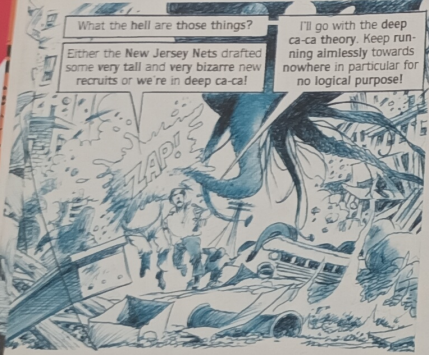

The divorce agreement! I get the kids on normal weekends. You get the kids on weekends when all hell breaks loose!

What agreement?

Rattle, want to see something cool? There's a weird lightning storm outside!

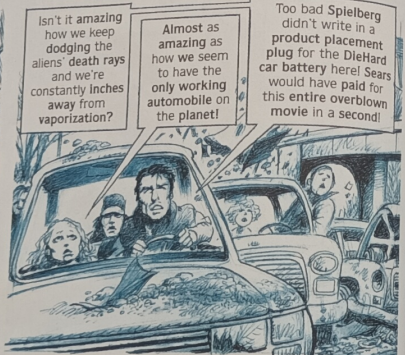

Hey, great parenting! Invite an 11-year-old out into a freak electrical storm! What's planned for next visit? Going to ask us to run with scissors?

What the hell are those things?

Either the New Jersey Nets drafted some very tall and very bizarre new recruits or we're in deep ca-ca!

I'll go with the deep ca-ca theory. Keep running aimlessly towards nowhere in particular for no logical purpose!

Isn't it amazing how we keep dodging aliens' death rays and we're constantly inches away from vaporization?

Almost as amazing as how we seem to have the only working automobile on the planet!

Too bad Spielberg didn't write in a product placement plug for the DieHard car battery here! Sears would have paid for this entire overblown movie in a second!

What will we do to escape, Dad?

Why not? Are you sorry I'm your son?

No, we have to save that predictable moment when you DO call me "Dad" for the end of the movie so the audience will know we've finally bonded!

If there's anyone still left in the theater by then!

Those bastards! Can anyone stop them?

It's a Mission Impossible, but I can beat them with my Eyes Wide Shut!

Are you sure?

Positive! It's Risky Business, but I can do it, with or without A Few Good Men!

Do we have the most imbecilic Dad on the Eastern Seaboard?

Far and Away!

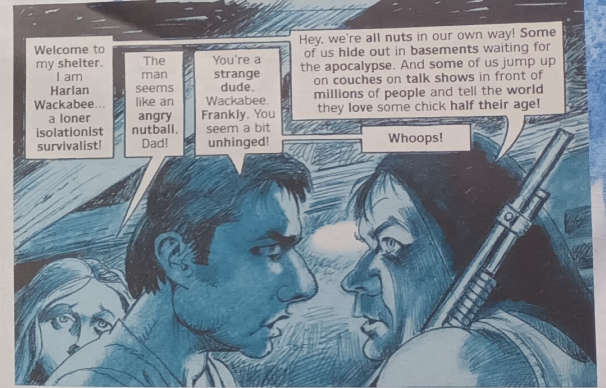

I've taken you away from the aliens bombarding us with death rays and brought you here to a safe haven!

Where?

Thanks, Dad!

Into the farm basement of a deranged stranger!

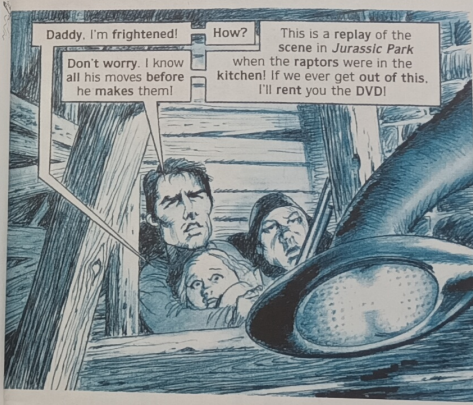

Welcome to my shelter. I am Harlan Wackabee... a loner isolationist survivalist!

The man seems like an angry nutball, Dad!

You're a strange dude, Wackabee. Frankly, you seem a bit unhinged!

Whoops!

Hey, we're all nuts in our own way! Some of us hide out in basements waiting for the apocalypse. And some of us jump up on couches on talk shows in front of millions of people and tell the world they love some chick half their age!

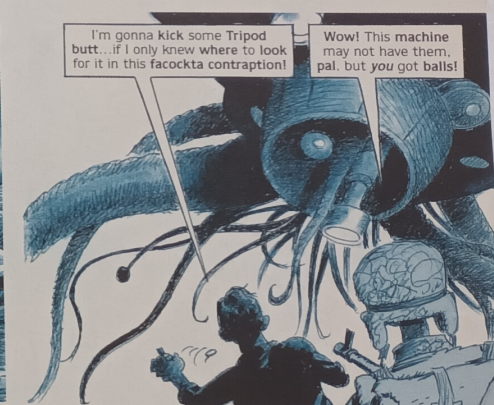

Daddy, I'm frightened!

How?

This is a replay of the scene in Jurassic Park when the raptors were in the kitchen! If we ever get out of this, I'll rent you the DVD!

Don't worry. I know all his moves before he makes them!

I'm gonna kick some Tripod butt... if I only knew where to look for it in this facockta contraption!

Wow! This machine may not have them, pal, but you got balls!

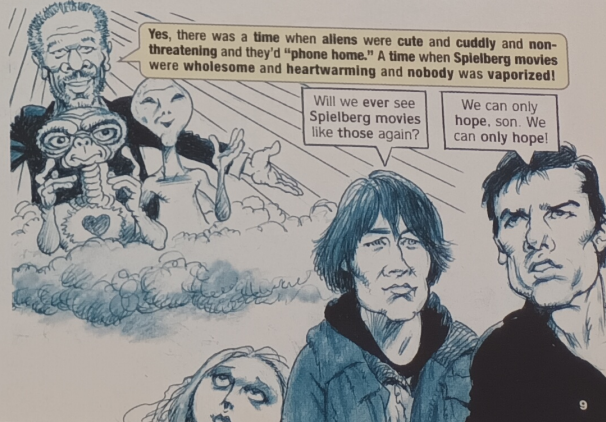

I HATE the aliens! I never want to see them again!

Believe it or not, honey, all aliens are not bad. There was a time this planet had friendly aliens!

Was that like a million years ago?

Actually... About 25 years ago!

Yes, there was a time when aliens were cute and cuddly and non-threatening and they'd "phone home." A time when Spielberg movies were wholesome and heartwarming and nobody was vaporized!

Will we ever see Spielberg movies like those again?

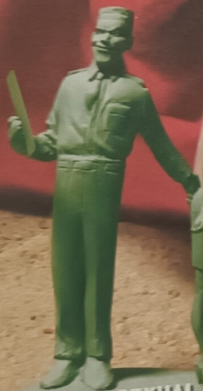

We can only hope, son. We can only hope!

SOLDIERS OF MISFORTUNE DEPT.

In the world of toys, nothing is more classic than little green army men. For 50 years kids have been using them to create backyard battles and clog vacuum cleaners. Molding the tiny soldiers with a magnifying glass is a rite of passage for any future serial killer. And they make great chew toys for dogs! Surprisingly, in all these years, little green army men have never been updated. There's not much variety beyond Buzzsaw Guy, Crawling Guy and Guy Poised with Bayonet. Isn't it time to introduce some new figures? Like these...

THE WORST THINGS ABOUT BEING THE BRAINIEST KID IN THE WORLD

Every day is a bad hair day - and there is nothing you can do about it.

No spare time as you'd have to do homework for all the cool kids!

Your nether regions would be numb from many wedgies and you'd need to wear a special elastic underpant.

Irreversible spinal damage from stockpiling too many pens and calculators in your top pocket.

Monday evenings would become unendingly interrupted by calls from Eddie Maguire with Phone-a-Friend requests.

Realisation has set in the brainy kids become nerdy teenagers.

Your ear canals would be permanently moist due to continual Wet Willies.

Your friends would also be smart nerds who would create nerd fan web sites dedicated in your honour.

Inessential asthma caused by your mother pulling your elasticised trousers up too high.

You'll never be invited to the Neverland Ranch. Then again, that could be a good thing.

Nobody would understand your poignant witticisms - which means you'll have a future writing for MAD!

PREMATURE E ANIMATION DEPT.

You've all seen the computer animated films that mega-Hollywood studios such as Pixar and Dreamworks have thrust onto your cinema screens - Shrek, Toy Story, The Incredibles, and so forth. What you haven't seen are the behind-the-scenes struggles to get these films made.

ORIGINAL CONCEPTS OF CGI MOVIES

ARTIST: ANDRIES MARITZ WRITER: DAN LIESKE

Original Title: FUNDING NEMO

Who could resist the tale of a clownfish wandering from studio to studio seeking funding for a documentary on his lost son? Answer: Everybody. "What proportion of the profits would he take?" was one objection. "How does a fish sign a contract anyway?" was another one. Eventually Marlin quit his bellyaching, forgot about the documentary and just found the little bastard already.

Original Title: TROY STORY

Originally a study of the battle for the city of Troy (but starring dolls and action figures), the movie succeeded only when the Greek legends and fruiti subtitles were dropped, along with the toy box shaped like a wooden horse. It wasn't until 2004 that Brad Pitt and Eric Bana revisited the original concept of a movie combining both the history of the Trojan wars and childlike, inhuman acting.

Original Title: A STOMACH BUG'S LIFE

Set in a person's gut, this film only got the go-ahead after a location transplant to a leafy forest. This change in setting caused original leading man Sir Anthony Hopkins to quit, replaced by Dave Foley, who was both more convincing in the lead role of Flik and also not prone to saying 'tell me Clarice - have the lambs stopped digesting' over and over, long after it ceased being funny.

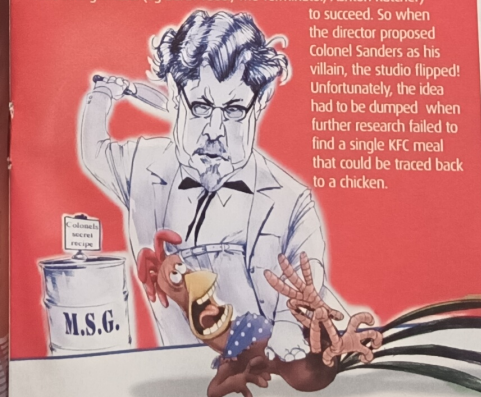

Original Title: THE INEDIBLES

Sir Anthony stuck with his digestive tract movie idea, returning with a pitch about a stomach-dwelling family of superpowered bacteria who digest accidentally swallowed inedible items (eg McDonalds Happy Meals). The studio stole only the superhero family bit, leaving Sir Anthony, defeated and downcast, to commit the most senseless act of all - signing on to star in Hannibal.

Original Title: KENTUCKY FRIED CHICKEN RUN

The studio had a strong story about farmyard chicken torturing. But films need strong villains (eg Darth Vader, The Terminator, Ashton Kutcher) to succeed. So when the director proposed Colonel Sanders as his villain, the studio flipped! Unfortunately, the idea had to be dumped when further research failed to find a single KFC meal that could be traced back to a chicken.

Original Title: TREK

Dreamworks had made a comedy about a Star Trek fanatic who, after many adventures with an ass (ie Eddie Murphy), won the love of a princess. Sadly, test audiences refused to buy the film's premise. How could a Star Trek fan win the love of anybody, let alone a princess? A rewrite led to success when the Trekkie was replaced with an infinitely less repugnant hideous green ogre.

Original Title: MOBSTERS, INC

The Godfather, Goodfellas, Herbie: Fully Loaded. Hollywood loves gangster flicks. So a CGI movie about the mafia (and associated Oscar success) was inevitable. Alas, the first draft was too violent, with numerous scenes of hoodlums riddling children with bullets while they slept. The solution: out with mob hitmen, in with cowering monsters. The result: 0 (zero) Academy Awards.

Original Title: MAD GAS CAR

MAD magazine decided we, too, could write a digitally animated hit film. We came up with a plot - a car that runs on fart juice! This led to a script full of zany adventures and a scene where Angelina Jolie has a shower. Thirty rewrites later, Hollywood sent back a film about shipwrecked New York Zoo animals - no sign of Angelina, showering or otherwise. Our profit share? Nuthin'.

OBJECTIVE:

To send you around and around in circles until you give up and go home!

INSTRUCTIONS FOR PLAY

Place playing pieces at the Start line on the island paradise of Christmas Island.

The game is a game of no chance using two dice.

Roll the two dice with players taking turns. On rolling a double six, proceed to the next stage of processing to the playing squares located within Australian waters.

Once in Australian waters, follow the playing squares in a clockwise direction and follow the directions of the squares.

If you land on a No Chance or Community Disinterest square, follow the directions on the card.

On rolling a second double six, proceed to the nearest mainland detention centre for further processing. Remain here until you roll three sixes.

On rolling three sixes you can proceed to the DIMA Central Immigration square where you will be awarded with Aussie Citizenship and win the game.

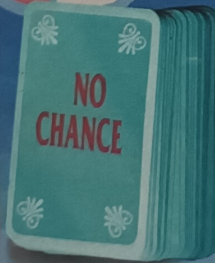

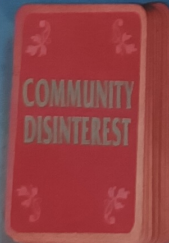

At any time during the game, you may elect to stop playing and simply go home.

INSTANT COMA'S GONNA GET YOU DEPT.

Lately, it's been impossible to avoid all the stories in the news about living wills and health care proxies. To miss it, you'd have to be in a coma or something! But one issue was never addressed — just what stipulations and requests can you include in your living will? To find out, we interviewed some people to see what arrangements they had made. If you should ever suffer some kind of accident and end up in the "vegetable aisle," you'll be glad you paid attention as MAD asks...

JUST SAY NO TO THUGS DEPT.

Urban Street gangs. They terrorize entire neighborhoods, wreak havoc and destruction on society's basic structure and are glamorized regularly on platinum-selling rap albums. So we know what you're thinking: "What the hell am I doing in the damn chess club???" I wanna live on the edge with my peeps, too! Okay, fine. But before you go off with your Glock holstered, be sure that the gang you've selected has some street cred and isn't just a bunch of crybaby wannabes. How? Simply by being on the lookout for...

A MAD PEEK BEHIND THE SCENES AT Celebrity POKER SHOWDOWN

I'd like to welcome everyone to another taping of Celebrity Poker Showdown! It's a good alternative for viewers who can't take the nervous excitement of Lingo reruns on the Game Show Network!

The director on this show is great! He catches every turn of the cards, every player's reaction, every bet!

Yeah! Where did he get his experience? Game shows? Sports broadcasts?

Neither! He used to run the surveillance security cameras at the Golden Nugget!

Shouldn't we be concerned that young people will see celebrities gambling and think it's cool to imitate them?

I wouldn't be too worried. Celebrities have been telling young people how to vote for years and they haven't been imitating that!

Some of these celebrities don't play poker very well! They're depending on luck over skill!

I'm not surprised. That's how most of them became celebrities in the first place!

Matthew Perry is playing for the Make-A-Wish Foundation. Tony Hawk is playing for the ASPCA. And since she hasn't had a hit since American Pie, Shannon Elizabeth is playing for the Shannon Elizabeth Mortgage Fund!

WOO HOO!

This is the greatest game!
Yeah, I love playing poker!

Me too, but between watching Celebrity Poker Showdown, World Poker Tour, ESPN World Series of Poker, Ultimate Poker Challenge and Poker Superstars, who has the friggin' time to actually play?

Ya know, it's jerks like MacDonald that ruin serious poker games!

My turn already? Go fish!

Somebody's playing footsie with me under the table!

Ahhh. I would've backdoored the flush, if I hadn't folded after the flop. Not a bad beat, though. I was almost down to the felt anyway.

She's in a tough spot, wondering if she made the right move.

You mean whether to raise or fold?

No, whether to appear on this disaster of a show or to hold out for The Surreal Life 9!

It sure takes a lot of nerve to shoot the whole wad on such a weak hand!

Not for a guy who agreed to make Gigli after he read the script!

Who's that poor soul in the corner crying his eyes out? A celebrity who just lost?

Actually, it's the agent of the celebrity who won. He just realized that this is the most money his client's made in 15 years and his commission is going to charity!

THERE'S SOMETHING ABOUT LARRY DEPT.

Hello, I'm Jason Alexander! I played George Costanza on Seinfeld! Afterwards, I tried my own series! It failed! Kramer's show also was a flopper! And Elaine's show fizzled! It figures that the only two people who became multi-millionaires are Jerry, who makes more now from reruns, and THIS guy, who co-created Seinfeld and who now has his own hot cable show! Except for a happy, peppy theme song, it's one of TV's most neurotic shows ever produced! But the critics love it! A lot! It's...

So hurry up already!
What for?

I have twenty-two people to alienate and I only have thirty minutes!

But we have a meeting with HBO!

I'll alienate HBO later! Right now I have confrontations scheduled with a maitre d', a shoe salesman at Barneys and a Rabbi!

Will any of this play in Middle America?

On this series, Middle America ends at Wilshire and Rodeo!

You and Larry have no children, do you?

No, and it's probably a good thing! There are three words Larry won't permit in our house: "Happily Ever After."

ARTIST: ANGELO TORRES

WRITER: JOSH GORDON

What a great morning! The birds are chirping and the sun is shining!

Really? I hear noise pollution and see potential skin cancer!

You put such a negative spin on everything!

I have to! Look at the success of Six Feet Under, The Sopranos and Carnivàle — shows about death, ruthless organized crime families, and seamy carnal life! This isn't feel-good TV, this is HBO!

What's the story we don't have a script for this week?

None that I'm aware of! But as long as we follow my ABC formula, we can't miss!

ABC formula?

IT'S NOT TEA
IT'S NO. 1

Absurd, their Enthusiasm

We have a handheld camera just following Larry around. The series has a documentary feel!

It's kind of like The Blair Witch Project, only with angst and bagels!

Who is this Larry Davy guy anyway?

He's the co-creator of Seinfeld! He plays himself — a difficult, neurotic Hollywood writer-producer!

How neurotic?

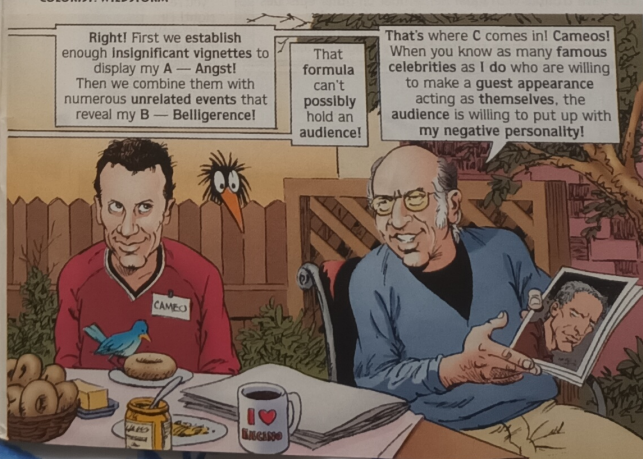

Let me put it this way — at a studio party, he once depressed Woody Allen and Albert Brooks!

On this show, there's no real script! Almost everything is improvised!

There may be no script, but if this series wins an Emmy for "Best Writing," you know Larry's going to be the first one up at the podium!

COLORIST: WILDSTORM

Right! First we establish enough insignificant vignettes to display my A — Angst! Then we combine them with numerous unrelated events that reveal my B — Belligerence!

That formula can't possibly hold an audience!

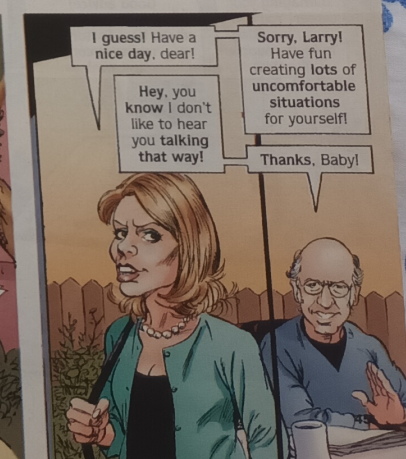

That's where C comes in! Cameos! When you know as many famous celebrities as I do who are willing to make a guest appearance acting as themselves, the audience is willing to put up with my negative personality!

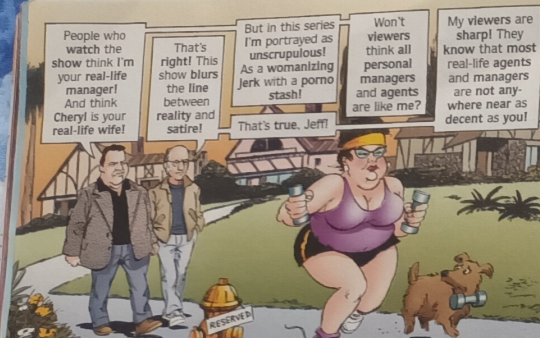

I guess! Have a nice day, dear!

Hey, you know I don't like to hear you talking that way!

Sorry, Larry! Have fun creating lots of uncomfortable situations for yourself!

Thanks, Baby!

People who watch the show think I'm your real-life manager! And think Cheryl is your real-life wife!

That's right! This show blurs the line between reality and satire!

But in this series I'm portrayed as unscrupulous! As a womanizing jerk with a porno stash!

That's true, Jeff!

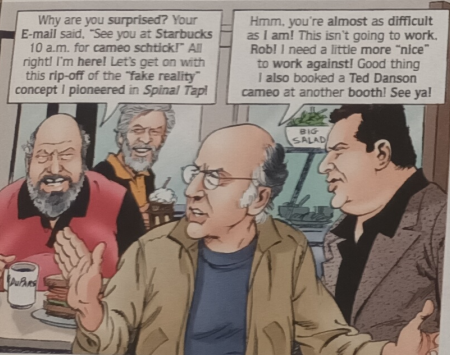

Won't viewers think all personal managers and agents are like me?

My viewers are sharp! They know that most real-life agents and managers are not anywhere near as decent as you!

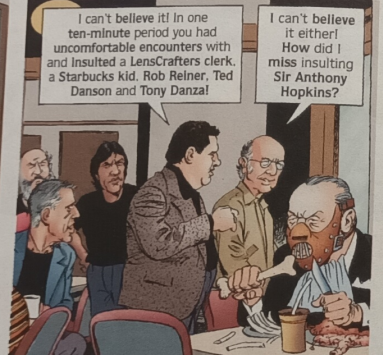

Hey, Larry!

Rob! Rob Reiner! Funny meeting you here!

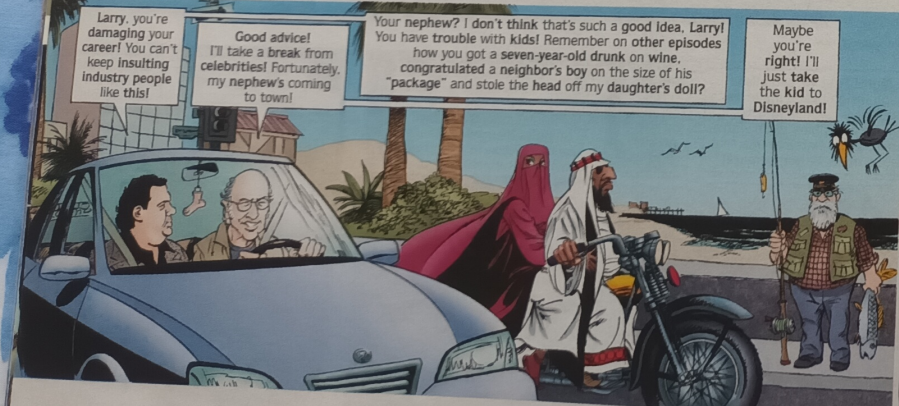

Why are you surprised? Your E-mail said, "See you at Starbucks 10 a.m. for cameo schtick!" All right! I'm here! Let's get on with this rip-off of the "fake reality" concept I pioneered in Spinal Tap!

Hmm, you're almost as difficult as I am! This isn't going to work. Rob! I need a little more "nice" to work against! Good thing I also booked a Ted Danson cameo at another booth! See ya!

I can't believe it! In one ten-minute period you had uncomfortable encounters with and insulted a LensCrafters clerk, a Starbucks kid, Rob Reiner, Ted Danson and Tony Danza!

I can't believe it either! How did I miss insulting Sir Anthony Hopkins?

Larry, you're damaging your career! You can't keep insulting industry people like this!

Good advice! I'll take a break from celebrities! Fortunately, my nephew's coming to town!

Your nephew? I don't think that's such a good idea, Larry! You have trouble with kids! Remember on other episodes how you got a seven-year-old drunk on wine, congratulated a neighbor's boy on the size of his "package" and stole the head off my daughter's doll?

Maybe you're right! I'll just take the kid to Disneyland!

Jimmy, this is Disneyland — "The Happiest Place On Earth"! Let's go!

In one visit, Larry, you made this "The Most Depressing Place On Earth"!

Hey! What'd I do?

You insulted Snow White, Prince Charming and two of the dwarfs!

Well, they started it!

What year was the "slide dish" invented?

Whatever happened to ink blotters?

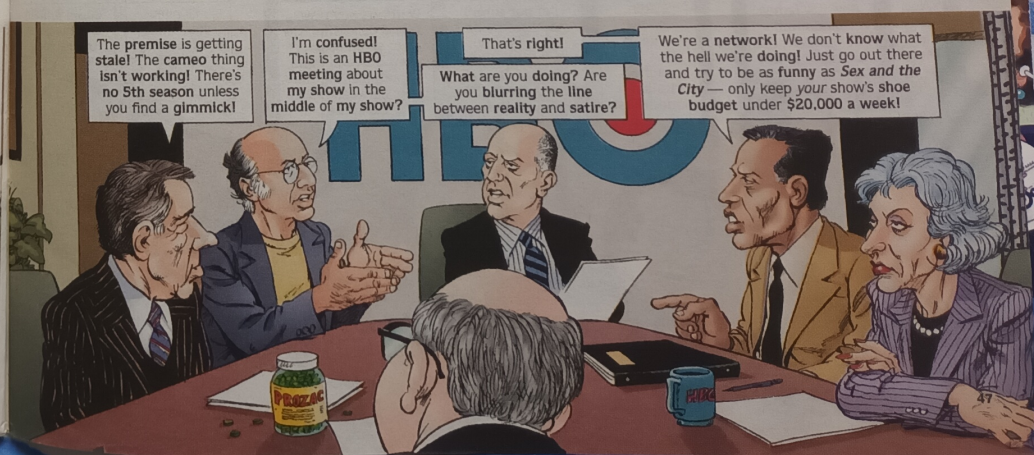

Ever notice that all the closet space missing in New York is in Montana?

What is all this?

I just thought I'd stop for some personal reflection!

Shouldn't we be moving the story along?

That's the beauty of this show! There IS no story to move along! If they gave a People's Choice Award for "meandering" we'd be a shoo-in!

The premise is getting stale! The cameo thing isn't working! There's no 5th season unless you find a gimmick!

I'm confused! This is an HBO meeting about my show in the middle of my show?

That's right! What are you doing? Are you blurring the line between reality and satire?

We're a network! We don't know what the hell we're doing! Just go out there and try to be as funny as Sex and the City — only keep your show's shoe budget under $20,000 a week!
